For this Furniture Museum by Patrick Leung, staying true to the heart and soul of the design maestro prevails with a coherent mix of the design on display and the character of its creator embodied through and through to invite visitors to reflect on their relationships with their home and furniture. Leung's dedicated studies to develop contemporary furniture fit for more homes and families began rather late in his 40-year interior design career, according to the multidisciplinary designer. He began this museum project with an Oriental interpretation of aesthetics and curves, drawing on the well-known ancient Chinese belief of a circular sky and a squarish earth.
